Writing

The difficulties of making a film from a book.

We often can see the movies that were filmed from a book. Sometimes the movie is 100 percent same as the book, but sometimes the plot of the film can be very different from what the author of the book wanted to say on the pages.

Filmmakers are facing a lot of challenges while making a film from the book. For example the director of the movie has to follow the original plot of the book to make viewers feel like they are reading a book and not watching a film. Even if there is no aim to make film be exactly the same as ^{we} the book, there is still need to not go to far away from author's idea, because the viewers should understand that it was made from a book. gr

Filmmakers also have to deal with casting actors who would be perfect for these roles. The appearance of the actors should be like the appearance that was described in the book.

I would like to watch a film from the A.S. Pushkin's book "The captain's daughter". This book is very interesting and it is my favorite book. But making ^{it} this film would be very difficult for filmmakers, there are few things in this book that could be the issues, for example the horses. The filmmakers have to find actors that not only look like book's characters but also can ride a horse. Also there are many murder and battle scenes in this book that, I believe, ~~are~~ are hard to recreate. Making films always a difficult thing, but making a film from the book is even more hard. That is why we should appreciate the work of filmmakers more.
